THIRD YEAR.

MAYSVILLE, KY., TUESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1894.

ONE CENT.

WHAT'S THE MATTER?
Good Doctor Thurber, tell us
What ails the President?
Has he got a toothache?
Or is his ankle bent?

Why stays he so at Woodley?

Or since the recent blast,
Has his case of Tariffmania
Overturned him at last?

Perhaps it's a toothache;
Or it's a sprained toe;

Or a touch of Paraphysia;

That gives him the twich?

Or is it Bonodonia,

With no one understands?

Or Congressional eczema

Which breaks out on his hands?

Or Elizabethian asthma?

Or a case of Turned-downitis,

Which makes his favor high?

Say, is it Crovermorosis,

With cerebral spinal Me?

Or is it simply symptoms

Of general struphy?

It's called Mulleroposis,

Or you'd call it grubhouse;

Or it's Inconiosis,

Or merely Mulligubrie?

Good Doctor Thurber, tell us.

We cannot endorse this;

The Nation thirsts for knowledge

Or his diathesis.

An inventory of the personal estate of the late T. K. Bell has been returned, showing a valuation of $4,730 14.

It's no joke this time. A young man threw a stone yesterday and broke G. A. McCarthey's window sure enough.

Major E. Stanley Lee was walking leisurely down West Second street Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. At 6 o'clock Monday morning he was in Oakland, Md. What would our grandfathers have thought of that?

George P. Beasley the carriage builder has just completed a handsome buggy for a gentleman in Melbourne, Australia. It is a most elegant piece of workmanship, and it's quite a credit to a Maysville man when his wares find a market so far from home.

At the meeting of Confidence Lodge No. 59, F. A. M., held last night, the officers were chosen:

W. M.—Robert R. Owens.

S. W.—George W. Salter.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

They Are Being Held at the Central Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Weston R. Gales, the Evangelist, is holding a series of meetings in the city, trying to win souls for Christ—especially men.

These services are being held in the Central Presbyterian Church, and consist of two services each day—8 p.m. for men, women and children, and at 7 p.m. for men only.

Mothers and sisters, here is a Godly man, a fine speaker and a grand entertainer in our midst interested in your husbands and sons. Won't you lend your presence and prayers at the noon meeting?

Husbands and brothers, this man is interested in your eternal welfare. Won't you come out tonight at 7 o'clock and hear him?

Every man and boy in the city is invited to all the services.

The Women's Prayer Meeting will be held in the M. E. Church tonight at 7 o'clock instead of Y. M. C. A. Hall, as the Choral Union meets there.

FRANK W. ARMSTRONG.

Death of This Former Citizen at Battle Creek, Mich.

Telegrams have been received in this city announcing the death of Mr. Frank W. Armstrong at Battle Creek, Mich., on noon yesterday. He had been at that resort for many months, seeking a restoration of health, having for nine long years been a confirmed invalid.

Within the circle that he was known, much restricted by the condition of his health, he was most highly esteemed as a delightful companion, a true man, and one highly accomplished in every way that extended travel and the best advantages for culture could give. Of ample means, he had gone to all quarters of the two continents, where any hope could be held out to stop the ravages of disease, for he had everything but health to make life desirable—a loving wife and daughter, fond relatives and friends, and a disposition to make all happy about him.

Only those who knew him intimately could properly appreciate him, and they will mourn his demise as that of one of nature's noblemen, whose gentle ways and genuine trustworthiness had so won their esteem and affection.

He was a native of Maysville and spent his boyhood days here, but went abroad in his youth and early manhood to prosecute his studies.

His health precluded for many years past engaging in any regular business, but his time was given to the management of his estate.

He was exact and honorable in his business methods, and always reliable to prosecute his studies.

His home latterly had been at Lexington, Ky., where his only daughter, Mrs. Robert Swigert, lives, but he will be laid to rest in Spring Grove at Cincinnati, where two of his sisters and other relatives sleep the last sleep.

His home latterly had been at Lexington, Ky., where his only daughter, Mrs.

Robert Swigert, lives, but he will be laid to rest in Spring Grove at Cincinnati, where two of his sisters and other relatives sleep the last sleep.

He claims the right to the exclusive use of the name of The Yeoman, however, and will contest Editor McDonald's effort to usurp it.

AMERICA FOR AMERICAS AMERICANS

MCKINLEY AND WILSON ABROAD.

In 1890 William McKinley was burned in effigy in the English manufacturing city of Sheffield; but in 1894 William L. Wilson was dined and wined in London because he is the author of a Free-trade Tariff Bill. These are significant facts.

A WASHINGTON to the Commercial Gazette gives some figures that are quite interesting. President CLEVELAND has been in office for nearly twenty-one months and, as if to verify Republican predictions, his Administration has already increased the public debt by $100,000,000, at an interest charge of $2,988,000 a year, or a total in the ten years that the bonds have to run of $29,800,000. With a little more than twenty-seven months remaining of his Administration, people may well ask what will be the total addition to the bonded debt that will mark President CLEVELAND's second Administration.

On March 1st, 1893, three days before President HARRISON went out of office, the Treasury statement for the month ending February 25th showed the aggregate debt, including certificates and Treasury notes, to be $1,065,110,089. On January 31st, one month before it had been $1,571,301,615. Thus there had been a decrease during February, HARRISON's last month in office, of $47,192,117. The cash balance on March 1st was $124,128,087.88, of which $100,000.00 was the gold reserve and $24,128.087.88 the net cash balance. This was the condition of the country's finances when President CLEVELAND and Secretary CARISLE took charge of them.

What is their condition now? The Treasury statement for the month ending October 31st, 1894, showed the aggregate debt, including certificates and Treasury notes, to be $1,086,154,087.88. On September 30th, one month before it had been $1,630,002,606.88, a decrease during October of $548,756. But the debt proper had increased $1,101,280, while the apparent decrease had been in the amount of certificates and Treasury notes offset by cash in the Treasury. The cash balance on November 1st was $107,340,145.80, a decrease during October of $15,757,573.88. Of this balance only $61,361,826 was in the gold reserve fund, which, ever since JOHN SHERMAN was Secretary, it had been the invariable rule, until this Administration, to maintain at the $100,000,000 mark, while the net cash balance amounted to $45,978,319.80.

A comparison between the condition of the Treasury on March 1st, 1893, after four years of HARRISON's Administration, and on November 1st, 1894, after twenty months of CLEVELAND's Administration, shows that: the interest-bearing debt has increased from $565,034,390 to $635,042,860, an increase of $69,000.00. The aggregate debt has gone from $1,565,110,089.88 to $1,636,154,087.88, an increase of $61,043,000. The cash balance has fallen from $124,128,087.88 to $107,340,145.80, and the gold reserve, notwithstanding the issue of $50,000,000 in bonds to replace it in February last, has shrunk from $100,000,000 to $61,361,826, a decrease of $38,638,174. Since November 1st it has fallen to, in round numbers, $67,000.00.

This comparison shows the contrast up to November 1st. On Monday, Secretary CARISLE sold $60,000,000 more bonds, which sends the total increase in the public debt, in less than twenty-one months, up to $111,043,939.65. During President HARRISON's Administration the interest-bearing debt was reduced $235,388,000, and there was saved in interest $55,352,480.81. To whatever satisfaction there is in this contrast, those who voted enthusiastically for a change in 1892 are certainly entitled.

Another contrast between Republican and Democratic administrations, as presented by President CLEVELAND's first Administration and the succeeding Administration of General HARRISON, has its interest and its lessons. When Mr. CLEVELAND went into office, March 4th, 1885, the available cash balance in the Treasury was $150,350,000.00. Not until virtually forced to do so by the passage of a resolution by a Democratic House of Representatives, did he pay off any of the bonded indebtedness, and then only $143,884,300, on which he saved $32,932,538.88 interest. He did, however, increase the available cash balance by $150,356,306.41 to $183,827,190.29, at which figure it stood when General HARRISON took hold of affairs on March 1st, 1889. General HARRISON did reduce this balance by March 1st, 1893, to $124,128,087.88, but in the meantime he had paid off $80,704,000 more of the debt than had Mr. CLEVELAND, and saved $22,519,655.18 more in interest.

It is asserted in reply to specific statements that thousands of Armenians, men, women and children, were massacred by Kurds, that not more than seventy of this race of nomads were employed to assist simply as guides through the hilly districts.

The legation adds: "These facts show that far from committing any cruelties, the regular troops succeeded in restoring peace and order."

Though no official confirmation can yet be had from the foreign department, and the president's message is silent on the subject, there is a well-defined impression that the Turkish government has given to the United States a statement similar to those given to the government of Great Britain, that these alleged outrages should be fully investigated.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 4.—The Columbus postmaster adopted resolutions calling upon Congress to demand an investigation of the reported cruelties practiced by the Turks upon the Christians of Armenia.

Sioux City SPECIAL RAIL.

Sioux City, Dec. 4.—A woman entered a certain hat store. She had in tow a boy of seven or eight years of age. That is, his body was not very old, but his face looked like a man of thirty.

"Where's your chap for this boy?" I don't care," said the woman.

The buyer pointed her to a stock, and finally presented to the woman a hat worth about fifty cents.

"I guess this will satisfy you," he said.

"All right. I'll take it. I wanted something cheap for the boy to have his due in."

She then went out.

AN OHIO STATE STORY.

Chevy Chasers.

They tell a story of a man who came into Omaha one day and wanted to trade his farm for some city lots. "All right," replied the real estate agent. "Get me my buggy and we'll drive you over to see the houses." The man agreed.

The man was a native of the state—wheat, sunflowers, paved streets, cement sidewalks, electric lights, shade trees and all that sort of thing. They were all there. They were all there.

He got into the car. The real estate agent extolled the beauty of the surrounding.

Mavroyeni Bey, Turkish Minister at Washington,

Denies Reports of an Armenian Massacre in Asiatic Turkey.

It is Stated That It Was the Greek Christians Who Started the Revolt by Attacking Musselman Villages—Turkish Troops Only Restored Order!

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The president placed his manuscript late Saturday night. Within four hours after the copy was received at the public printing office it was in type.

By Sunday noon a thousand pamphlets were printed and wrapped in paper bands. The massed copies were placed in the vanit at the printing office, to which only the public printer himself and his chief clerk had access.

Several hundred packages were handed Col. Creek of the white house staff, who left with them on Sunday afternoon for Baltimore, where he was met by the postmaster, who was intrusted with a sufficient number to supply the American diplomatic and consular agents in Turkey, whose dispatches indicate that obstacles are being placed in their way by the Turks.

Entire silence on the subject has been observed at the Turkish legation in Washington until Monday, the minister, Mavroyeni Bey, being absent in New York. An official statement to the effect that the Greeks had been driven out of the country was issued to the press associations in advance, but took this extraordinary method of distributing it.

UPPER WATERS RISING.

EIGHTEEN MILLION Bushels of Black Diamond Coal to be Shipped to Europe.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 4.—Both the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers are rising. From present indications about 7,000 bushels of coal the Pittsburgh harbor will be on its way to the lower end of the river within four-eight hours. There are about 18,000 bushels of coal awaiting shipment. Many floats of coal boats have already started, but the greater part will not get away before Tuesday, when it is expected there will be a rise of two feet of water in the channel. Nineteen towboats left the harbor Monday.

The towboat Cruiser, having a number of loaded coal barges in her fleet, en route for the southern market, struck a snag at Merriman Monday. The barge struck a rock, and the contents of coal were scattered.

CLEVELAND'S METHODS.

His Message Delivered by Messenger to a Few Papers.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The president finished his message late Saturday night. Within four hours after the copy was received at the public printing office it was in type.

By Sunday noon a thousand pamphlets were printed and wrapped in paper bands. The massed copies were placed in the vanit at the printing office, to which only the public printer himself and his chief clerk had access.

Several hundred packages were handed Col. Creek of the white house staff, who left with them on Sunday afternoon for Baltimore, where he was met by the postmaster, who was intrusted with a sufficient number to supply the American diplomatic and consular agents in Turkey, whose dispatches indicate that obstacles are being placed in their way by the Turks.

Entire silence on the subject has been observed at the Turkish legation in Washington until Monday, the minister, Mavroyeni Bey, being absent in New York. An official statement to the effect that the Greeks had been driven out of the country was issued to the press associations in advance, but took this extraordinary method of distributing it.

The spice of romance entered into the nuptials of Mr. Henry E. Poage, several times the Sheriff of Bracken county, and Miss Neppie Sue, whose paternal domicile is in Brookville, the delightful capital of Bracken, and the home of beauty and hospitality.

The ordinary suitor might have some difficulty with locksmiths, but a Kentucky Sheriff—never.

They loved mutually, still the hindrance of old folks at home would subdue their palpitating hearts.

But the hinder the hindrance the harder the temptation to way the journeyed across the Ohio and to the hospitable welcome of the Queen City, in the company of attending friends.

The latest is an exporter's and importer's trust formed by New York merchants engaged in the trade with South America, Mexico and Australia.

The indications are that Frankfort's street lines are permanently tied up. They shut down Thanksgiving Day, and no cars have been run since then, the alleged excuse being an accident to some important appliance at the company's power-house. The managers of the road now reluctantly admit that the secret of the trouble is a disagreement between the local and foreign stockholders, and there is doubt in the minds of some whether the lines will resume again. The road has been heavily in debt, and the local stockholders claim that the foreign stockholders refuse to bear any part of the losses. The road was built at a cost of about $70,000, and has been in operation only about a year.
